

The Advocate

Home of the Wallabies

Friday, August 10, 2001

Established 1907 in Coffs Harbour

Thanks for the art lift

PATIENTS and visitors to Coffs Harbour's new hospital will be given a bit of a lift with a painting that captures the best of Coffs Harbour's lifestyle.

Local artist Jeffrey Baker painted the picture, titled Let's Be Thankful (pictured right), which will be hung in the foyer of the new hospital when it opens in early December.

'I have produced something that I believe is going to be uplifting. Everybody will be able to view it and see something in it,' Mr Baker said.

Mr Baker said Australian Art Link had been commissioned to supply artworks for the hospital and he contacted them because he wanted to be able to do something for the community.

The painting, which measures three by two-and-a-half metres, took a few months to complete.

'I'm glad that I've done this. It's nice to contribute. If people appreciate what you've done that's a wonderful sort of thing.'

Mr Baker's work can be seen on his website www.jeffrey-bakerstudios.com.au

